

In our culture there is a subliminal male experience of mutual destruction. It is a negative form of bonding that impacts adult females within the rubric “rape culture”. The scent of it on the female population is distinct. It is mistrust. In the practice of general social intercourse it may be represented by the terms “man” and “woman”. The disservice is self evident.