

Political criminology

Monday, 28 June 2021

LOVEINT + SNOWDEN

If we accept Edward Snowden's assertion that his disclosure has proportion to an attack on democracy as popular sovereignty, then we must review his assertion that the shape of that is a systematic corruption of law enforcement inclusive of the perversion of signals intelligence and cyber operations.

This is widely recognized as a factual representation of actuality. Terms and forms vary by context, perspective, and purpose. The assertion and its denial, disassembly, and distraction have become entrenched.

Certainly that is a veracious description of actuality. Accepting that "Snowden assertion" as factual, we have the situation of the moment to inspect and examine. It is dependent. If the Snowden assertion is counterfactual or afactual, then it is vacant.

Which is that the Obama, Biden, Harris world is genuinely anticorrupt, truthful, and veracious. And that the corrupt world has the shape asserted by Edward Snowden.

Having conducted the hypothesis from 2013 to 2021, I remain committed to holding that to be the most reasonable appreciation of actuality.

John Pritchard, @syntelos [CC-BY-NC]